WERE MANY RESIGNATIONS

Supervisor Aaron F. Dickey this morning announced the Fayette county census enumerators. Supervisor Dickey encountered considerable difficulty in compiling a list to take the census in Fayette owing to the number of resignations that come in after names had been recommended.

Smallpox in the southern end of the county caused one after another candidate to withdraw his papers. Supervisor Dickey has completed the list. Most of the commissions have already been mailed and others are being sent out from the headquarters of the Supervisor. As soon as possible the supplies will be forwarded to the various enumerators. April 15 is "census day" and that is when the nose counters will begin their work.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT LECTURES THE EGYPTIANS.

At the University of Egypt in Speech Today Former President Spoke Fearlessly of Assassination of Premier, Good Citizenship and Requisites For Self Government.

United Press Telegram.
CAIRO, March 28.—Col. Roosevelt in a speech at the University of Egypt today advocated the law's enforcement, and fearlessly denounced the recent assassination of Premier Pasha, the Premier. The Nationalists have been charged with the responsibility of the assassination and many hearers wept under the Colonel's denunciation. Many of the faculty and students are Nationalist sympathizers. He said:

"It will not make a people self governed to give them a constitution. No matter how admirable a document it is, you must first train the people. This is usually slow and must be thorough and steady. The assassination of your Premier was a greater calamity to Egypt than the Premier's wrong. The assassin type possesses no qualities of good citizenship. The type produces poor soldiers and worse citizens. It stands at the pinnacle of evil, and infamy. Persons endorsing such an act stand during the night and this morning people passing there saw the door had been forced. The matter was reported to Health Officer Allen Hyatt. The pest house has no terrors for the roomers of that section and with the approach of summer the Health Officer's troubles begin out there."

Colonel Roosevelt ended his speech with an appeal for religious toleration between Christians and Moslems. The university conferred a degree of doctor of laws on the Colonel.

EASTER SERVICES IN THE CHURCHES.

There Was a Large Attendance of All Congregations.

LARGE CONFIRMATION CLASS

At the Trinity Lutheran Church—Sunday School Program at the Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday Morning Largely Attended.

Handsome floral decorations and large congregations marked the annual Easter services held yesterday in all the local churches. The large edifices were fragrant with spring flowers and never did they look as pretty. Bankings of fragrant lilies, hyacinths, roses and other Easter flowers were lavishly used, while tall ferns and palms were also greatly in evidence. The day was a red letter one in the history of the Trinity Lutheran Church. The attendance was the largest on record. The Sunday School room and the church auditorium were packed to their utmost capacity and many members of the church were unable to get in. The confirmation services and the baptism of a number of children were features of the morning services. The confirmation class was composed of 15 candidates and in all 53 new members were taken into the church. The total membership is now 486. The Sunday School had an attendance of 328 and the collection amounted to $61.09.

The Cathedral church had a collection of $27. The total collection for the day including the morning and evening services amounted to $410. The musical program in the evening was very elaborate. A special orchestra assisted the choir and the selections rendered showed the work of several weeks of earnest practice. In the rear of the altar was a large white cross decorated with Easter lilies and smilax while on the altar was a large bouquet of roses.

Standing room was at a premium at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Special services were held both morning and evening. The morning services were in charge of the children and in the manner in which they carried out the program showed very careful training on the part of the teachers. The evening services were in charge of the older members and the musical program was the best ever rendered. Every seat was filled and many remained standing during both services. The floral decorations were very handsome.

The First Baptist Church was crowded last evening when an Easter cantata, "From Cross to Crown," was rendered. The program included, prelude, march, vocal solo, "Just for Today," Miss Martha Gennas; instrumental selection; remarks by the pastor; offertory, "Servando," vocal solo, Miss Martha Gennas; vocal solo, "O Lamb of God," "Stars in Their Golden Splendor," Mrs. Dull; "O, Could I speak the Matchless Worth," Miss Edna Bower; vocal solo, "He Arose," Miss Hazel Colvin; vocal solo, "O, Sing the Gates Wide Open," Charles Bailey; "Rejoice, the Lord is Risen," Mrs. Dull; organist, Miss Mabel Jones. A cantata, "The New Life," was presented at the Christian Church under the direction of J. L. Rodriguez. The large auditorium and Sunday School room were crowded. Miss Helen Osterberg of Greensburg, sang at all the services during the day. Miss Osterberg is a singer of note and is the possessor of a very sweet voice.

The services at the Trinity Reformed Church were the best ever held. The Sunday School had charge of the evening services and rendered a very entertaining program. Confirmation services were held in connection with the services.

Special Easter music was also rendered at the First Presbyterian Church and large crowds were present at both services.

Holy communion was conducted at 8 o'clock yesterday morning at the Trinity Episcopal Church and services at 11 o'clock were conducted by Rev. Richard Kemp. The musical program was elaborate as was the handsome floral decorations.

REMONSTRANCES Against Licenses Were Filed Today

UNIONTOWN, March 28.—Several remonstrances were filed against applicants for liquor licenses here today. Attorney H. L. Robinson filed one against T. W. Baxter of Connellsville, remonstrating against an eating house license for him, the remonstrance being signed by 85 voters and 35 real estate owners. There is a remonstrance against John Dean who asks for a wholesale license for Connellsville, the remonstrance being signed by 74 property owners and 50 voters. Another remonstrance is against James M. Marletta, also of Connellsville who is applying for an eating house license. Fourteen real estate owners and 20 voters sign the paper, while there is another remonstrance signed by two persons, J. L. Fries and B. H. Wherry, who say the applicant "is not a proper person to have a license." The general remonstrance alleges that the eating house is unnecessary and not in a proper place.

David L. Carson, who is applying at Bannock station is remonstrated against by 41 electors of Perry township, and 16 property owners in Bannock, who ask that a license be refused for that town. Attorney W. H. Martin filed the remonstrances.

Charles G. Teed, who applies for the Teed House on Morgantown street, Uniontown, is confronted by a remonstrance signed by 12 members of the Official Board of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, who say that the proposed saloon would be but a few feet from their place of worship and that the drinking would be a nuisance to people living to and coming from church, and also that the place seeking license is out on the borders of the residence section of town. This place has been refused license in the past.

The alleged chautauque was not so good as that, but everyone who saw the load of feathers go by, said they were glad they came, and that it was worth seeing. Some blinding waistcoats thundered out Main street late in the afternoon and were said to conceal some college boys, in 1911 clothes. Trousers will be more rolled up than then now, and the socks will make Halley's comet at close range look like a piece of imitation landscape nailed to the ground.

It is agreeable to say that the weather man was mistaken in what he had said up for me, and that the rain would be broken and nothing but pleasing weather was present. Easter day a year ago, coming on April 11, was pretty, although cold and bright. In 1908 Easter Sunday came on April 19 and the day was cool and rainy.

Commander-in-Chief Hubbard expresses the opinion that the explosion was due to a premature discharge. The Charleston brought the dead to Cavite and returned to the target range to continue practice.

Wolter King Of the White Slave Drivers

NEW YORK, March 28.—Albert Wolter, in the Tombs, denies playing Ruth Wheeler, aged 15, but the police are collecting a chain of circumstantial evidence about him. They are attempting to charge Wolter with a series of revolting crimes which display him as "king of the white slave drivers."

Kathern Mueller, Wolter's pseudo wife who supported him, gives damaging evidence against him. Coronator Holthausen today declared the Wheeler girl was dead when the place she was found in was set on fire.

The police believe Mueller is innocent. An indictment is expected charging Wolter with first degree murder.

SUMMER WEATHER MARKED EASTER.

The Temperature Rose to 71 Degrees Yesterday Afternoon

LARGE CROWDS TURNED OUT

In the Afternoon for Strolls and There Was the Usual Show of Easter Millinery and New Clothes—Some Figures on Previous Weather.

The weather yesterday was remarkable for an Easter Sunday. The temperature was 60 in the morning and rose to 71 in the afternoon. Last year the weather was clear, but it was also cold, the temperature being 31 in the morning and 52 in the afternoon. In 1908 it rained Easter Sunday morning and was cloudy in the afternoon, the temperature being 53 and 57.

All those around here who were not tied down to a bed of sickness or away from this locality were out yesterday to see how warm a day it was, have the dust blown on them, show their new duds and look at other people's upholstery, and most important of all to see whether or not they could spy a chautauque hat; like the papers have been printing things about. The churches were well crowded and special Easter day music was rendered in about all of them. All needed, perhaps to make the day a purely American holiday was a bull game, but that is a little early, although the sun blazed down hot enough to scorch the bleachers and dry up a spit ball.

But the chautauque hat, that many hurt their eyes looking for, and that the papers with grape vine cables from Paris have said would be the most swaggy pieces of goods turned out by the millinery cutters and fatteners was seen once, or so some people aver, but possibly they mistook something much less for a chautauque. All you need to do to have a chautauque is to catch some kind of a bird—the larger the better, and most any kind of a bird, will do, and then sort of scoop out the bottom and there you are.

The alleged chautauque was not so good as that, but everyone who saw the load of feathers go by, said they were glad they came, and that it was worth seeing. Some blinding waistcoats thundered out Main street late in the afternoon and were said to conceal some college boys, in 1911 clothes. Trousers will be more rolled up than then now, and the socks will make Halley's comet at close range look like a piece of imitation landscape nailed to the ground.

It is agreeable to say that the weather man was mistaken in what he had said up for me, and that the rain would be broken and nothing but pleasing weather was present. Easter day a year ago, coming on April 11, was pretty, although cold and bright. In 1908 Easter Sunday came on April 19 and the day was cool and rainy.

The dinner at the Smith House marked the opening of the hotel dining room for the first time since the hotel was closed for repairs. BESSIE CROUSER SUIT IS ON Second Trial of Damage Case Against Point Marion Borough Comes Up Today—Vandergrift Files Reasons For a New Trial—Other Court News.

UNIONTOWN, March 28.—Attorneys P. S. Newmyer and Sterling, Higbee & Matthews today filed the reply of Humbert Long to the contest entered against the will of the late Samuel N. Long. The contest was started by George R. Long, Hannah Flemming and Catherine L. Morrow.

Humbert Long, the administrator, through his attorneys, denies that Samuel N. Long was not of sound and disposing mind at the time the will was made; declares that the will is the last will and testament of the deceased, and denies that it does not express his wishes in disposing of the estate. Civil court opened this morning with but one of the seven cases set for today ready for trial. This one was the suit of Miss Bessie Crouser against the Borough of Point Marion. She asks $15,000 damages for injuries sustained from tripping over a gas pipe which laid across a sidewalk. At a former trial Miss Crouser secured a verdict but a new trial was ordered. The case of James Vandergrift, convicted of a statutory offense, a motion was made for a new trial with leave to file additional reasons. The only reason filed at this time is that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

In the cases against Mike Medgikat and Harry Moody, both of whom have been committed to Dymont, orders were made placing the costs upon the county.

John Mraz has filed a motion for judgment to be opened and he be let into a defense in the suit of Steto and Susan Caidos to recover on a $5,000 judgment note. Mraz denies that he ever signed the note or authorized anyone to sign it for him.

Charles Martin, W. H. Coffman and W. H. Franks were named viewers to look over the ground of a proposed private road John Klink wants to run through the property of Michael White in Dunbar township. The road would be about three rods long. August Jennart has entered suit against Keener Stewart to recover $2,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections. Jennart was granted a divorce recently on the grounds of his wife's infidelity and Keener Stewart was named as co-respondent.

Woman Nearing Century Mark Dies On Farm on Which She Was Born

Word was received in Connelldale this morning of the death of Miss Leah Burnworth at her home at Johnson Chapel, near Connelldale. Miss Burnworth was on the eve of her 94th birthday when she died at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. She was born on the same farm on which she died, March 25, 1816. The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 1:30 P. M. from her late home. Interment will be in the Johnson Chapel Cemetery.

Miss Burnworth lived almost a century at Johnson Chapel. Only a few times was she away from the old farm and then only on short visits to points close by. In her early girlhood tales now legends of Indian killings and stories of the war of 1812 and the Revolutionary war, were common by eye witnesses and participants in the stirring events.

Miss Burnworth was the last of a large family of brothers and sisters, most of whom lived and died in the community. Up until a few years ago Miss Burnworth enjoyed excellent health. She was then stricken with cancer and this disease resulted in her death. She was a woman of keen observation and it was a treat to hear her tell of the old days and incidents of the early settlement of Turkeyfoot township.

Indian Creek Valley Road Will Be Opened Soon.

With a continuance of the present good weather it is expected that the extension of the Indian Creek Valley road from Rogers Mills to Jones Mills will be completed within the next month. Practically all the grading has been completed, but 4,000 feet remaining to be constructed. This will probably be done by next Saturday night, as the men have been grading at the rate of 1,000 feet a week for the past month or so.

The track has been laid beyond Davidson and the train has been running intermittently as far as Indian Head. Of the 10 miles extension track has been laid for six miles. The remaining four miles is the easiest part of the job and exceptionally good time can be made if the weather permits.

'SOUL KISS' PLEASED.

It Played Here Saturday With Every Member Which Began Season.

"The Soul Kiss" played to two appreciative audiences here Saturday. There are some features to the production which might be improved upon but as a whole the performance was exceptionally clever. The dancing of Mlle. Pertina and work of Ben Ginnell as "J. Lucifer Mephisto," are especially deserving of commendation. The company was large and the girls, as a rule, decidedly comely.

Manager Talbot since leaving New York early in the season has taken "The Soul Kiss" to Canada, the Pacific Coast and through the South without making a single change in his cast. Every chorus girl and principal who started out at the beginning of the season is still in the show.

EASTER TRAFFIC

On the West Penn Railways Broke Records Yesterday.

Easter traffic on the West Penn was a record breaker. The fine weather brought out the crowds and the cars were crowded all day long.

Traffic Saturday night was also heavy. It is said that a good many people had to walk home because they could not get on the last car. Some Scottsdale folks spent the night here on that account.

The depot here is on a siding as it is at Pottin and other places on this left-handed road and by reason of this there have been several persons injured and some narrow escapes from death to passengers crossing from the depot to make their train. There would not be so much ground for complaint if there were any ground for complaint. The situation here is such that the siding could just as well be the main track as not.

There is an old proverb in this country that a bush of dust in a man's eye is worth a king's ransom. Times of it could be gathered off of the streets and roads hereabouts now, but notwithstanding the excessive dust and weather, we have had this month past weather has taught us that it is not best to bank on having no more bad weather. This is a bush of dust, spreading from the depot here, which has lived his three years and ten years out on York Road, still he never knew an April that the peak of a bush of dust here has not been white with snow at some time in the month. Records kept here show that on April 10, 1901, there was two feet long from the peak of the bush of dust, the bush, and on April 4, 1902, snow fell to the depth of 13 inches.

THREATENED TARIFF WAR WITH CANADA.

The announcement from Washington, that the threatened tariff war between the United States and Canada has been averted and that the minimum rates will apply, will be received with much gratification by the business world.

Our present tariff law is founded on the doctrine of reciprocity. Those countries which do not discriminate against us in the matter of tariff, but which accord to us the same duties levied on imports from other nations are charged the minimum tariff duties by the United States, the nations which refuse to accord us this equitable treatment are subjected to the maximum tariff, which is 25% greater than the minimum. The maximum and minimum tariffs are effective on the President's proclamation.

The trouble with Canada seems to be due to a clause in an old treaty admitting France to special trade advantages, which Canada now declines to concede to the United States and which doubtless she would be glad to recall from France. In case we apply the maximum tariff, Canada is prepared to retaliate promptly and vigorously. Its government has power to impose the "tariff tax," that is to say an additional duty on American imports, which in many instances will be sufficient to keep American trade in these articles out of Canada.

Neither the United States nor Canada can afford to have a tariff quarrel. They do too much business with each other. Their mutual interests are greater and more closely allied than their interests with any other countries.

PERRYOPOLIS ENDORSES HOME BASEBALL.

The Courier's suggestion to the baseball fans that they form a home association, to be composed of Fayette county clubs, has been enthusiastically endorsed by Perryopolis, and the following communication is received:

The players of the national game in and around Perryopolis were glad to see the Courier's proposition in the editorial of Saturday's Courier. It is a wise suggestion. It gives the fans of the old town of Washington fame (Perryopolis) to say that there is enough baseball spirit in our town to put on the diamond a team of all home players that will be able to swing around a circuit such as proposed in the first division.

The three clubs H. & L. E. train would carry teams from Dawson to Connelville here and back for 25 cents one way, or 50 cents round trip, while we are not from the upper town would have to pay as if they could not out as fast a team or draw as large a crowd as Perryopolis. For years we have had a strong independent team, and 25 cents were not unusual. It is a good thing. We hope it will materialize, and that the promoters will keep it. It is a suggestion that will make a bigger splash on the map than our baseball, but when it comes to baseball players we are found on the A. at the upper left-hand corner.

These are brave words, but they breathe a spirit which, if shared by the other towns in Fayette county, cannot fail to make Home Baseball interesting and popular with Fayette county people.

THE RECOVERY OF INDUSTRIAL BY-PRODUCTS.

The statement that the United States Steel Corporation will make this year from its waste furnace slag 100,000 barrels of cement at a profit of 75 cents per barrel, moves the Charleston Mail to demand after the following fashion on the good business policy of utilizing the waste products of manufacture:

In years past in the Pittsburgh district getting rid of the slag used to tax the energies of the iron and steel manufacturers. Now, in this one item from what used to be waste the steel corporation will realize the sum of seven and one-half million dollars. The Steel Corporation is said to produce enough slag to make sixty million barrels of cement annually.

It may not be generally known that many valuable by-products can be produced from coal, both in connection with mining and after the coal is mined. If these by-products would be utilized on the field an enormous industry could be built up in connection with coal mining in the coke region alone enough to be wanted to furnish all the power required to operate a steel mill of industry in the Pittsburgh district. When these things are realized it will be seen that manufacturing and coal mining are crude and wasteful in the extreme, and are in the first stages of development.

The inventive genius who will point a practical way to the utilization of the waste heat and gases from coke ovens, and the waste coke ashes or breeze from the coke, will have made his fortune.

Numerous attempts have been made along this line, but up to date nothing useful has come out of it, yet it seems a simple proposition, much more easy of solution than many other problems in invention which have been triumphantly solved by active brains.

Thousands of dollars go up in smoke and are scattered broadcast about the coke plants because human intelligence has not been active enough in devising appliances for their recovery and utilization.

THE AMENDE HONORABLE: THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

The Unlontown Standard makes the amende honorable after the following fashion:

The editor of the Courier makes known that he doesn't want to play the dual role of father and mother of free bridges in the county. He doesn't want to occupy the position if it is not pleasing to him to do so. We don't suggest it because of his eminent services and to let him know that there was no disposition among his contemporaries to rob him of the honor to which they thought he had made claim and is entitled.

The Courier man is not as fair as usual in lowest terms. Unlontown proposes to take all the new county buildings recommended by the Grand Jury to the cost of $50,000. She will endeavor to put these in Connelville, but neither the Court, Grand Jury, nor Board of Voters asked the location for the County Home of Work House and it is possible that these might be given to the Young Men's Club if her editors believe themselves well. They wrong us when they intimate that Unlontown is selfish and wants more than is due her. The Connelville editors seem to have no serious presentation of their county capital. Perhaps they get this from the fact that the county institute is always held here. They do not appear to realize that it must be held at the educational center.

We accept the apology in the spirit in which it is tendered, and in turn acknowledge the justice of all our esteemed contemporary says concerning the proposed new county buildings, even though it should transpire that we are being angled for like the native sucker; but we insist that we have no interest in the county institute. We have our own school superintendent and he is as good as any county superintendent who ever cat-culled masters or marmes, always excepting Superintendent Cooke.

As to the bridge question, while we protest that we never fathered or mothered it, we admit that we helped to rock the baby's cradle.

The West Penn Railway Company seems to be due for another reorganization. This trolley interest has changed its name several times in the course of its evolution, but each time the name has covered greater expansion. The proposed new name is the West Penn Traction Company, which seems to be more appropriate for a trolley system than the word, "railroad," because the latter is misleading. Though there is no just reason for it, it should be so, yet it remains a fact that custom associates the word, "railroad" with steam railroad lines, and the word, "traction" with trolley lines.

Fayette county records some big mortgages.

John K. Tener, the handsome Washington county Congressman, eliminates himself from the gubernatorial "horse" by announcing that he is a candidate for Congress, and not for governor.

Easton was not without its tragedies.

The experience of a McKeesport motorist at Sutersville discloses a new and startling danger to which the incautious automobile driver is subject, namely, the curiosity of the neighbors who attempt with the aid of lighted matches to examine the internal anatomy of the machine from the bottom. Hereafter, when McKeesport joy-riders stop to tinker their machines in or near Sutersville, they will probably rope off the wagon or employ a cordon of H. G. guards to keep the men with curiosity and matches afar off.

Mount Eliza is acting as if it wasn't insured.

The engineer who is buried beneath his locomotive is usually buried for good, but not always.

If some of our editorial matter seems a trifle ancient, we beg to apologize and explain that it has been our good fortune to have a standing gallery where it was washed ashore in the flood of advertising which swept through the columns of the paper that loudly proclaimed all others in Fayette county including High Water Marks and the Not Paid Coupons.

The West Penn's pension list has been established.

The representatives of the coal operators and miners are struggling manfully with the task of reconciling the differences between the contending interests, with little prospect of success. The operators evince a disposition to concede something for peace, but the voice of the miners seems to be for war. The Connelville region will be sorry to see a strike, but it will try to console itself with the thought, "It's an ill wind that blows no good."

The West Side ice and cold storage people are convinced that there is such a thing as being too handy to the railroad.

The Pittsburgh graft scandal seems to reach into the banking management of that city. Bank competition is often keen, but it should never reach to bribery. People expect bankers to be honest. An investment in graft is investment in folly as well as in crime.

Dunbar had it just a trifle warmer than her neighbors on Monday.

A Washington county postmaster has resigned after forty years' service. This is probably the only exception in forty years to the ancient and proven rule, "Few die and none resign."

Circulation schemes have become numerous and ingenious, but their chief ingenuity seems to be directed to the effort to make the money for the promoter of the scheme. Most of these schemes lure to the benefit of the author of the system. Circulation so obtained usually fades away as soon as the terms of the subscription have expired. The best newspaper circulation is that of the newspaper which circulates on its merits. It is every publisher's right to conduct his business after his own notions, and the remarks are not intended as criticism, but rather as a warning against bad business.

The Democratic Politician, the Yellow Journal and the Sensational Preacher abide with us as well as the Preacher abide with us as well as the Preacher. The latter are more numerous than the former, but they are also more desirable.—Connellville Courier.
True enough. But, how about that? The People described by one The Yellow Journal as "Malefactors of Great Wealth and whom Senator Beveridge classed as Pirates of Business?"

NEW GRAVE MADE NEAR SCOTTTDALE

Carefully Sodded Over One
Discovered Across From Pitt's Mill.

WAS DUG DOWN OVER SIX FEET

Easter Cantata Given at Presbyterian Church, Example of What All the Churches Did Yesterday—Other
Notes of News in the Mill Town.

SCOTTTDALE, March 28.—A good deal of curiosity and excitement was aroused when a number of Foreman Michael Mathias's men, while gathering some brush to start a fire of discarded ties, found what appeared to be a recently made grave on the Overholt farm at West Overton late on Saturday. The men were working along the Mt. Pleasant branch of the P. & E. R. and the grave was found across from John Pitt's mill. In size it was about that of a grown person the dimensions being of such shape as the top of a grave, and the most convincing thing to indicate that the secret of a crime had been buried there was that the place had been carefully sodded over, and the dirt cleared away nicely.

Some men dug down until darkness stopped their efforts that evening but found nothing. On Sunday they began the quest again in the presence of a large crowd of interested people. They dug down carefully for over six feet and then gave the matter up, being convinced that someone had been engaged in some kind of prospecting there and had endeavored to conceal the work. The affair caused a good deal of excitement in that neighborhood.

Gave Easter Cantata.
At the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. J. E. Hutchinson, pastor, the sacred cantata "Bethany" was rendered to a large audience last evening. Instead of the usual preaching service. The choir taking part was composed of Mrs. G. E. Kelly, Mrs. W. V. Whitman, Mrs. W. E. Stauffer and Miss Ethel Dick, soprano; Miss Mae Gordon, Miss Mabel Seaman, Miss Laura Jackson and Miss Mary Rinn, alto; W. E. Hoeman, George Laing, R. C. Crapo, Leo Skemp and Simon Miller, tenors; and J. H. Cramer, Frank Gruber, F. W. Gearhart and Elmer Morrow, basses, while W. V. Whitman was the organist and director.

He Broke Right In.
"Good!" but it was a warm day in Scotland Sunday, that's what every one said. It was so warm that one man broke into an ice cream parlor, butted his way right through the door. It was up at A. H. Weaver's ice cream emporium that it happened. In the afternoon a stout individual, not loaded up with ice cream, went to the door and tried to get in, but the place was closed. All the cool stuff having been exhausted. Then he gave the door handle a good strong turn, and his elbow went right through the plate glass. It was an accident, of course, but many people thought the heat had crazed a citizen.

Big Crowd Out.
All the big crowds of Saturday nights of this year were surpassed on last Saturday evening, according to those who take notice of such matters. It was a big day at the mills and the down town streets were crowded from early until late.

Easter Day Services.
All the churches had special services yesterday, and one of the most unique was at the First Methodist Episcopal Sunday School, where they held an egg gathering. Each pupil was to bring at least one egg, just a regular every day egg, not colored up or anything. Several market baskets were filled and the eggs will be sent to the Deaconess' Home in Pittsburg.

Dr. Funk Here.
Rev. W. Ross Funk, D. D. of Dayton, O., was the guest of A. L. Kelser on Saturday. Rev. Dr. Funk, who was a former pastor here, preached at the Greenburg United Methodist Church yesterday evening, when about 10,000 was paid in cash toward removing the church debt.

Hotel Men's Day.
The tavern keepers of this burg are in Greenburg today where the annual license hearings are being conducted by court. The same applicants, and no new ones, are up to get another year's permission to do business. The list will be handed down in about a week.

Big Social Event.
The Easter dance to be given by prominent colored people at Ellsworth park auditorium tonight will be the largest social event among the colored society of the two counties. It is said, that has ever transpired. A colored orchestra from Uniontown will deliver the music for the occasion.

Exodus From Town.
There was a veritable exodus from town yesterday by residents, while people from other towns were much to be seen here. Walking parties were many, horse wagon junkies, boxcars and carriages and riding horses were all in use, and the street cars were simply overburdened.

Engagement Announced.
Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Myers of Louisa avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gretta Louisa to Andrew Jackson Brown of Monacaola City. The wedding will take place during midsummer.

Grandsons Are Mrs. Morrow's Pall Bearers

The funeral services over the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Sheppard Morrow who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George C. McGill, were held this morning from Mr. and Mrs. McGill's residence in Dawson. The services were in charge of Rev. H. M. Carnahan, pastor of the Cochran Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, and the burial took place at the Wesley Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church Cemetery, west of Scottdale. Rev. Archibald Auld, pastor of that church assisted Rev. Mr. Carnahan. The interment was beside the body of Mrs. Morrow's husband, the late John C. Morrow, who acquired the first lot when the Chapel Cemetery was opened many years ago, the family living in that locality for a number of years.

The pall bearers selected were six grandsons of the deceased, one from each family, as follows: Samuel Morrow, son of the late Paul Sheppard Morrow, Esq., of Uniontown; Walton Morrow, son of the late James Morrow, of Scottdale; Claude Anderson, son of Mrs. Adeline Anderson, of New Salem; Charles Anderson, of Wellsburg, O., son of Mrs. Heister A. Anderson, of Scottdale; Clarence Morrow, son of J. Caldwell Morrow, of Pittsburg; and John McGill, son of Mrs. Amanda McGill, of Dawson. J. Caldwell Morrow arrived from Georgia on Sunday morning.

A great many friends and neighbors called on Saturday evening and all day Sunday to pay their last respects. The Sunday a week previous was the 84th birthday anniversary of the deceased and a large number of postal cards with good wishes were sent her from all over the country. Then quite a number of Easter cards arrived on Saturday from those who did not know of Mrs. Morrow's illness and that she would be gone on Easter Day, and the cards near the body, which was surrounded by sweet flowers, were mute messages of those to whom she was dear, people both old and young.

The deceased was the widow of John C. Morrow who was born March 6, 1825, and died a few years ago. He was for many years a prominent resident of Scottdale, and spent the last several years of his life in Scottdale. He was married to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Paul and Catherine Tate Sheppard, April 22, 1847. Paul Sheppard was a soldier of the War of 1812, and came from Massachusetts. Her mother was the daughter of Hon. Gaspar Terry, son of a revolutionary soldier, and a relative of Christian Tarr, a Pennsylvania member of Congress.

The deceased is survived by the following children: Mrs. George C. McGill of Dawson, Mrs. Adeline Anderson of New Salem, Mrs. Heister A. Anderson of Scottdale, and J. Hample Morrow of Scottdale. She had a son, John C. Morrow, a noted auctioneer, is a son and has been in Georgia conducting land sales. The time was too short after his marriage to turn for the worse for him to get home, but he is expected home tonight. The deceased was a woman of keen mental perceptions, sunny disposition and having a great deal of humor about her. She liked the company of young people and every where she was welcomed and thought much of. She had a great liking for fancy work and in spite of her age and without glasses she made a great deal of beautiful work and particularly of old fashioned quilts which she pieced and gave to her relatives within the last few months.

A SUNDAY BLAZE IN DUNBAR TOWNSHIP

House of Mrs. Margaret Martin is Destroyed by Fire—Family Was Away.

DUNBAR, March 28.—Dunbar was again visited by fire on Sunday morning about 9 o'clock when a cottage house, the property of Mrs. Margaret Martin was burned to the ground. The house was occupied by her son, James, and no person was at home when the fire started as Mr. and Mrs. Martin and little son had left for Uniontown to spend the day. Neighbors noticed the smoke issuing from the house and broke down the doors, but the fire had gotten such a start that all that was saved was a trunk.

This house is situated in Dunbar township just outside the borough, on Spoor's Hill, across from the St. Mary's Catholic Church. The fire was caused by a strong wind which blew the sparks on the roof of the nearby dwellings. The loss is partly covered with insurance.

A SOCIAL HELD

By Home Department of Evangelical Sunday School, South Connelville.

The Organized Home Department of the South Connelville Evangelical Sunday School held a social at the home of the pastor, Rev. R. C. Miller, Thursday evening. A color scheme of purple and white was used in forming the pretty decorations, bouquets of violets being used as floral decorations.

About 40 members of the home department were present and enjoyed a very pleasant and profitable hour. A well arranged program consisting of music, recitations and addresses was rendered, after which refreshments were served by the ladies.

The next regular meeting of the Home Department will be held at the home of Mr. Bryner on Gibson avenue April 6, at 2:30 o'clock.

MRS. MARY FRANCIS DIED ON SATURDAY

Life of Old Resident, Past Four Score, Comes to Close.

LIVED HERE FOR 48 YEARS.

Had Been Ill for a Long Time and
Was for Many Years a Member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
Funeral this Afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Francis, aged 82 years, five months and four days, died Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the old Francis homestead No. 258 East Main street. Mrs. Francis has been an invalid for the past seven years and during that time she has been confined to her room. Heart failure resulted in her death. She was conscious until the last and during her long illness she was a patient sufferer.

Deceased was a daughter of John and Susan Woolver Dargh and was the widow of the late Robert J. Francis who at his time was one of the most widely known residents of Connellsville. Deceased was born along the Susquehanna river, near Harrisburg, October 22, 1828. When a small child her parents moved to Urbana, O. In 1847 she was married to Robert J. Francis. Forty-eight years ago they came to Connellsville and went to house-keeping in the house where Mrs. Francis died. Since the death of her husband which occurred about 12 years ago, Mrs. Francis has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Clara Martin. She was the mother of 10 children.

Mrs. Francis was one of the oldest members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. She was a woman of beautiful Christian character and though not able to attend services on account of her health she was deeply interested in work of the church up until the time of her death. For a woman of her age Mrs. Francis was remarkably bright. She retained her mental faculties up until the last. She was a charter member of the first Lodge of the Daughters of Rebekah to be organized in Connellsville. She was a kind friend to the poor and needy and never missed an opportunity to assist any of her friends who were in need of her help. She is survived by the following children: Alex. J. Francis and David J. Francis, Mrs. Clara Martin and George Francis of Connellsville; Mrs. Carrie Beigh of Greensburg and Mrs. Mary J. Johnston of McKeesport. One brother, John M. Dargh of Waynesburg, O., also survives.

Funeral services this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Martin, Rev. R. C. Wolf, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church will officiate. Interment in Chestnut Hill Cemetery.

McBeth Locates A Murderer In Seattle, Wash.

County Detective Alex. McBeth announced Saturday that Rocco Calabrese, the Johnstown Italian wanted in Johnstown for the murder of Antonio Stellitano in an Italian restaurant in Johnstown March 7, had been located by him in Seattle, Washington, and that the man has been arrested there.

Detective McBeth refused to state just how he had located the whereabouts of Calabrese, but it is reported that the murderer after making his escape from Johnstown made his way with all speed to Seattle. By the time he arrived there, it is said, he was out of ready funds and he wrote a friend in Uniontown asking him to send him some money. This letter arrived last week. This friend confided to other friends the news of the whereabouts of Calabrese and one of them is credited with having informed Detective McBeth of the whereabouts of the Italian wanted in Johnstown for murder.

The arrest of Calabrese will go a long way toward clearing up the mystery that exists at this time as to the man law for the murder of Stellitano, a hard-working Italian of an infectious nature, who the night he was fatally slain in an Italian den in the central part of Johnstown, right under the very noses of the police, had stopped in the place for a social hour. That he did not intend to remain long is evidenced by the fact that at the time of his visit he carried a number of packages of provisions for the family, that he was helping to support, after the shooting Calabrese disappeared as completely as though the earth had swallowed him up, and had not been heard of until Detective McBeth located him.

Y. M. C. A. Secretary Chase Accused Of the Larceny of Big Fat Rooster.

On Thursday evening of this week, at the Saison theatre, before Judge E. H. Reppert, Secretary Chase of the Y. M. C. A., a well known and highly respected citizen of this city, will be tried for the heinous crime of stealing a rooster.

Said rooster was the property and pride of Fred E. Younklin, Esq., another well known citizen and a man of undoubted integrity. The bird was stolen from the owner's henery and hearsay witnesses have told Mr. Younklin that Secretary Chase was the guilty party.

As the rooster was valuable as an alarm clock, although no beauty to gaze upon, Mr. Younklin deemed it his duty to complain of the theft to the proper authorities and obtain such lawful recompense as was provided in such cases.

Aside from personal loss, Mr. Younklin brought suit in regard for his neighbors. He was accused by a desire to see the hen roosts of Connellsville protected from all depredations. The defendant in this startling case offers for his defense "conspiracy." He says that one, W. D. McGinnis, has conspired with Prof. Stanley Ashe and others, for the purpose of damaging his, the defendant's character.

As a result one of the most exciting and laughable entertainments ever given in this city will occur at the time and place before mentioned. It will be under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. Reserved seats can be secured from now on, at the box office.

Asked To Promote A New Railroad Out in Colorado.

There is a possibility that Charles F. Hood, President of the Indian Creek Valley railroad, may go to Colorado this summer to look over the ground and pass his opinion on a new electric railroad. The fruit growers of the newly developed Montrose section, which is now being irrigated by the famous Gunnison tunnel, need a railroad to transport their fruit and other products. The power would be generated by the water from the Gunnison tunnel.

J. J. Hood of Telluride, Colo., is in Connellsville and talked the matter over with the Indian Creek Valley executive. Mr. Hood of Colorado is in the east trying to interest someone in locating a box factory in that section. He has taken up the railroad matter with the people back in Colorado and if the reply is favorable, Charles F. Hood will go out there sometime during the summer to look the project over. It is possible that he may be engaged to build the road.

CHAPTER X. LOYD AND ALICE.

THE Sunday morning service was just ending when Kittredge reached the Nante prison, and he got his first impressions of the place as he listened to the responses of the chorists, and, rather, shouted, by the men of prisoners, each joining in the chorus with full lung power through cell doors chained ajar. Lloyd settled down as comfortably as might be in his cell to pass the afternoon over "The Last of the Mohicans."

Scarcely had Lloyd finished a single chapter when one of the guards appeared with as much of surprise on his stolid countenance as an overworked underjailer can show, for an unprecedented thing had happened—a prisoner, an inmate of the prison, a young woman at that. Moreover, he was to see her in the private parlor, with not even the customary barrier of iron bars to separate them. When Kittredge crossed the threshold he started back with a cry of amazement.

"Alice!" he gasped, and his face lighted with a gleam of joy. It was a bare room, with bare floors and bare yellow painted walls, the only furnishings being two cane chairs and a cheap table, but to Kittredge it was a rare and radiant happy place, for Alice was there. He started at her almost unbelievably, but it was true. By some kind miracle Alice—his Alice—was there.

"Then, without any prelude, without so much as asking for an explanation or giving her time to make one, Lloyd sprang forward and caught the trembling girl in his arms and drew her close to him.

"You darling," he whispered—"you brave, beautiful darling! I love you! I love you!"

"Lloyd, dear," she said, "I am here to help you, to get you out of this dreadful place."

"You little angel!" he smiled.

"But first you must answer some questions," she said. "Now, then, have you ever had gout or rheumatism? Don't laugh—it's important."

"Never," he answered.

"Do you play tennis with your right hand or your left hand?"

"Oh, as here," he protested.

"No, no," she insisted, "you must tell me."

"I use both hands," he answered.

"Now, you have a chest of drawers in your room with two brass dogs fighting about the lock plates?"

"How the devil did you know that?"

"Never mind. You usually keep the right hand upper drawer locked, don't you?"

"That's true."

"Do you remember going to this drawer any time lately and finding it unlocked?"

"No, I haven't, and then, with a dash of embarrassment, she went on bravely. "Now, Lloyd, I come to the hardest part."

"What?"

"It's about the lady who—who called for you. She wants to help you. I have seen her."

"Besides, they have given me a law."

"Then—then what shall I do with them?" She looked at the banknotes in perplexity.

"Return them."

"Ah, yes," she agreed. "I will go to her apartment in the morning. Let me see, it's on the Avenue—Where did I put her address? And she went through the form of searching in her pocketbook."

"The Avenue Kleber," unsuspecting. "Of course, the Avenue Kleber. Where is that card? I've forgotten the number too. Do you remember it, dear?"

"Poor child! She tried so hard to speak naturally, but her emotion betrayed her."

"Ah, I see!" he cried, eyes her steadily. "She did not give you her address and you are trying to get it from me. Do you even know her name?"

"No," confessed Alice shamefacedly. "Forgive me. I—I wanted to help you."

"By making me do a dishonorable thing?"

"Don't look at me like that. I would not have you do a dishonorable thing, but—"

"Who told you to ask me these questions?"

"M. Coquell."

"What! The detective?"

"Yes. He believes you innocent. Lloyd, and he's going to prove it."

"I hope he does, but—tell him to leave this woman alone." Nothing would prevail on the young man to reveal the woman's name.

The guard came forward to warn them that the time was nearly up; they had three minutes more.

"All right," nodded Lloyd, and he turned to Alice who saw tears in his eyes. "It's tough, but never mind. You've made a man of me, little one, and I'll prove it. I used to have a sort of religion, and then I lost it, and now I've got it again—a new religion and a new creed. It's short and easy to say, but it's all I need, and it's going to keep me sane through this whole rotten business. Want to hear my creed?"

You know it already, darling, for you taught it to me. Here it is: I believe in Alice. That's all; that's enough. Let me kiss you."

Lloyd, who whispered as he bent toward her, "Can't you trust me with that woman's name?"

He drew back and looked at her half reproachfully, and her cheeks flushed. She would not have him think that she could bargain for her lips, and, throwing her arms about him, she murmured: "Kiss me; kiss me as much as you like. I am yours, yours."

The guard's gruff voice came between them.

"One moment," Kittredge said, and then to the clinging girl, "Why do you ask that woman's name when you know it already?"

Wild eyed she faced him and shook her head. "I don't know her name. I don't want to know it."

"You don't know her name?" he repeated, and even in the tumult of their last farewell her frank and honest denial lingered in his mind.

She did not know the woman's name! Back in his lonely cell Kittredge pondered this, and, reaching for his little volume of De Musset, his treasured pocket companion, that the jailer had let him keep, he opened it at the fly leaves. She did not know this woman's name! And wondering he read on the white page the words and the name written by Alice herself, scrawling, but distinctly, the day before in the garden of Notre Dame.

Coquell was neither surprised nor disappointed at the meager results of Alice's visit to the prison. It had not been entirely vain since he had learned that Kittredge might have used his left hand in firing a pistol and that he did not suffer with gout or rheumatism. This last point was of extreme importance.

And the detective was speedily put in excellent humor by a man awaiting him at the Palais de Justice Monday morning that the man sent to London to trace the burned photograph and the five pound notes had already met with success and had telegraphed that the notes in question had been issued to Addison Wilcott, whose bankers were Munroe & Co., Rue de la Paix.

Quick inquiries revealed the fact that Addison Wilcott was a well known New Yorker living in Paris, a man of leisure. He and his daughter wife lived in a private hotel on the Avenue Kleber, where they led a gay existence in the smartest and most spectacular circles of the American colony.

He was dull, good natured and a little fat. She was a beautiful woman, with extraordinary charm and a lively, girlish figure. She was supposed to kick up his heels in a quiet way, while she did the things brilliantly and kept the wheels of American colony gossip—bunny enough, anyway—turning and spinning until they ground in utter weariness.

Such was the information M. Paul had been able to gather from swift and special police sources when he presented himself at the Wilcott hotel about luncheon time on Monday. Addison was just starting with some friends for a run down to Fontainebleau in his new Panhard, and he listened impatiently to Coquell's explanation that he had come in regard to some English banknotes recently paid to Mr. Wilcott and possibly cleverly forged.

"Really!" exclaimed Addison. Coquell hoped that Mr. Wilcott would give him the notes in question in exchange for genuine ones. This would help the investigation.

"Of course, my dear sir," said the American, "but I haven't the notes. They were spent long ago."

"You remember when you paid them to?" questioned the detective.

"I didn't pay them to any one," replied Wilcott. "I gave them to my wife."

"Ah!" said Coquell, and presently he took his departure with polite assurances, whereupon the unsuspecting Addison totted away complacently for Fontainebleau.

It was now about 2 o'clock, and the next three hours M. Paul spent with his sources of information studying the career of Pussey Wilcott from special points of view in preparation for a call upon the lady.

He discovered two significant things—first that, whatever her actual education, Mrs. Wilcott had never openly compromised herself.

As offsetting this, however, Coquell secured information that connected Mrs. Wilcott directly with Martinez. It appeared that, among her other excitements, Pussey was passionately fond of gambling. She was known to have won and lost large sums at Monte Carlo, and she was a regular follower of the fashionable races in Paris. She had also been seen at the Olympia billiard academy, near the Grand hotel, where Martinez and other experts played regularly before eager audiences, among whom betting on the games was the great attraction.

"He used to talk about this lady," said one of the markers; "he called her the 'belle Americaine,' but I am sure he did not know her real name."

With so much in mind Coquell started up the Champs Elysees about 5 o'clock.

CHAPTER XI.
THE WOMAN IN THE CARR.

MRS. WILCOTT, very laud and stunning amid her luxurious surroundings, received M. Paul with the patronizing indifference that bored rich women extend to tradespeople. But presently when he explained that he was a detective and began to question her about the Ansonia affair she rose with a haughty gesture that was meant to banish him in confusion from her presence. Coquell, however, did not banish so easily. He had dealt with haughty ladies before.

"My dear madam, please sit down," he said quietly. "I must ask you to explain how it happens that a number of five pound notes, given to you by your husband some days ago, were found on the body of this murdered man."

"How do I know?" the beautiful Mrs. Wilcott replied sharply. "I spent the notes in shops; I'm not responsible for what became of them. Besides, I am dining out tonight, and I must dress. I really don't see any point to this conversation."

"No?" He smiled, and the keenness of his glance pierced her like a blade. "The point is, my dear lady, that I want you to tell me what you were doing with this billiard player when he was shot last Saturday night."

"It's false; I never knew the man," she cried. "It's an outrage for you to—to intrude on a lady and—insult her."

"You used to back his game at the Olympia."

"I'm fond of billiards. Is that a crime?"

"You left your cloak and a small leather bag in the vestibule at the Ansonia," pursued M. Paul.

"It's true!"

"Your name was found stamped in gold letters under a leather flap in the bag."

"So?—It was?"

Coquell nodded. "Yes. Now, what were you doing with Martinez in that room?"

For some moments she did not answer, but studied him with frightened, puzzled eyes. Then suddenly her whole manner changed.

"Now, I will tell you exactly what happened." And, settling herself near him, Pussey Wilcott entered bravely upon the hardest hour of her life. After all, he was a man, and she would do the best she could.

"Well," she went on quite charmingly, "I have done some foolish things in my life, but this is the most foolish. I did give Martinez the five pound notes. You see, he was to play a match this week with a Russian, and he offered to lay the money for me."

"But the dinner—the private room?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I went there for a perfectly proper reason. I needed some one to help me, and I—I couldn't ask a man who knew me, no?"

"Then Martinez didn't know you?"

"Of course not. He was foolish enough to think himself in love with me, and—well, I found it convenient and amusing to utilize him."

"For what?"

Mrs. Wilcott bit her red lips and then, with some dignity, replied that she did not see what bearing her purpose had on the case since it had not been accomplished.

"Why wasn't it accomplished?" he asked.

"Because the man was shot."

"Who shot him?"

"I don't know."

"But you were present in the room? You heard the shot? You saw Martinez fall?"

"Yes, but—"

Now her agitation increased. No one had entered the room except herself and Martinez and the waiter who served them, she insisted. Martinez was standing near her when—when the shot was fired, and he fell—

That was all.

Take a Little Diapasepsin Now and Your Stomach Will Feel Fine Five Minutes Later.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapasepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blowing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on those 50-cent cases of Papo's Diapasepsin, then you will readily see why it makes indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach Disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion and dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common every day cures advertised that they have almost made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer?

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and with out the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Papo's Diapasepsin.

NEW COAL FIELD NOW DISCOVERED.

Four-Foot Vein Opened in Southern Part of Dry Ridge.

HAD BEEN REGARDED AS BARREN

Jerry Truxal Brings a Number of Specimens of the Coal to Greensburg—Locality is About Five Miles Southeast of That Place.

GREENSBURG, March 23.—For many years the southern part of Dry Ridge in the vicinity of Pora's and Brinker's school houses, Westmoreland county, had been regarded by coal operators as a country without the "goods," but today the coal field has been tapped and a very good four-foot vein has been opened. This is considered by the farmers in that vicinity a fortunate and valuable discovery.

Old citizens who had to struggle hard to make their farms produce anything like an average crop will wake up to the fact that the coal under their land is worth many times more than the surface prices.

Jerry Truxal, a farmer and truck raiser of Dry Ridge, was in Greensburg this week with a number of specimens of minerals. He had several blocks of coal which he took from a vein on his farm, all of which were solid and had the appearance of good coal. He claimed that the coal stood the various tests in a satisfactory manner.

Along with the stratum of coal are other minerals resembling iron ore and fire clay.

Many years ago test wells were put down but the companies in charge of the test abandoned the district and went to other places.

This locality is about five to six miles southeast of Greensburg and not far from Trauger and United. In many instances the coal can be mined by drift and thus save the enormous cost of a shaft. The proximity to the coal road to the mining towns in that vicinity will make marketing easy. After all these many years of waiting the farmers in Dry Ridge locality may find themselves on the map.

Flames Sweep 300 Acres.

Chester, W. Va., March 28.—After burning for a day and a night a forest fire which swept 300 acres of the farms of Madison Evans and Henry and Wesley Robb at Fairview, near New Cumberland, was subdued after it had caused a loss of over $1,000. The fire destroyed several thousand feet of timber and, more than 1,000 feet of fence.

Farmers' Plows Save Property.

St. Clairsville, O., March 28.—Forest fires in this vicinity are causing great damage. Sparks from a Baltimore and Ohio engine fired a field, and thirty farmers with plows worked hours to save their property. A passenger train was held up while the crew removed burning branches of trees that had fallen on the track and set the fires alight.

FOUR DEATHS FROM TYPHOID IN A WEEK

Have Occurred at Mt. Pleasant and Five New Cases Develop.

FOURTEEN CASES IN TOWN.

Easter Services at Churches Well Attended—Two Little Foreign Tots Wander From Home—Local Brevelles of Big Westmoreland Town.

Special to The Courier.
MT. PLEASANT, March 28.—Within a single week four deaths have occurred at this place from typhoid fever, and at present there are 14 cases of the disease in town. The latest victim is Harrison Prokes, an Austrian miner at Merwood, aged 32 years, who succumbed to the disease in the hospital last Saturday evening. Prokes is survived by a wife and family. On the same day five new cases of fever developed, those confined are David Patterson of East Washington street, a carpenter for the H. C. Frick Coke Company at their standard plant; John Keller, aged 17 of Main street; Pearl Kieker, age seven of Railroad street; Robert Morrison, Jr., age seven, of Southfield street, and Miss Eva Broegle, of Scottsdale, who is a patient in the hospital with the disease. Health Officer Jacob Shuler quarantined all of the houses Saturday with large placards and probably some of the rubbish that fills many of the alleys in town will be removed in the near future. Much trouble is experienced by the families of the fever sufferers, for the local hospital is so crowded that it is almost impossible to secure a room there for a patient and private nurses cannot be hired in town for any price.

Easter Sunday Services.
Easter Sunday was fittingly observed in all of the churches in town yesterday. In every instance the floral arrays were beautiful and many of the churches were festooned with flowers. In the United Brethren Church 13 new members were taken in and communion services were also held. In the Methodist Episcopal Church Rev. B. E. Conway delivered the sermon in the morning owing to the illness of Rev. T. N. Easton the regular minister. In the Reformed Church the Rev. J. H. Kline delivered the sermon. The Young Men's Christian Association held a service in the evening, when 17 new members were taken in and communion services were observed in the Reformed Church.

Charged With Larceny.
Officer Edward Stevens arrested Harvey Miller formerly of this place but who has been a resident of Johnstown for the past several months, last Saturday night charged with the larceny of a ring. The arrest was made with a warrant issued by Johnstown where the larceny occurred. Constable Brown of Johnstown came over Sunday and took charge of the prisoner.

Blaine Goldman for the First Ward.
Blaine Goldman of the First Ward, and Clyde Kulp of the Second Ward, have received their appointments as census enumerators in this place.

New Pipe Organ Used.
The new 12 pipe organ recently ordered by the people of this United Presbyterian Church was received here Saturday and is due to be used for the first at the Easter services.

Tots Wander From Home.
Chief of Police Keller last night on duty Sunday morning in the East End when an eleven-year-old little three-year-old Italian boy who was filling the air with his cry for his mother. The child had unknowingly straggled far from his home on Washington street and when he discovered himself to be lost he went bitterly calling all the time for his parents. Chief Keller happened to know the youngster and took him to his parents who had not yet missed the child.

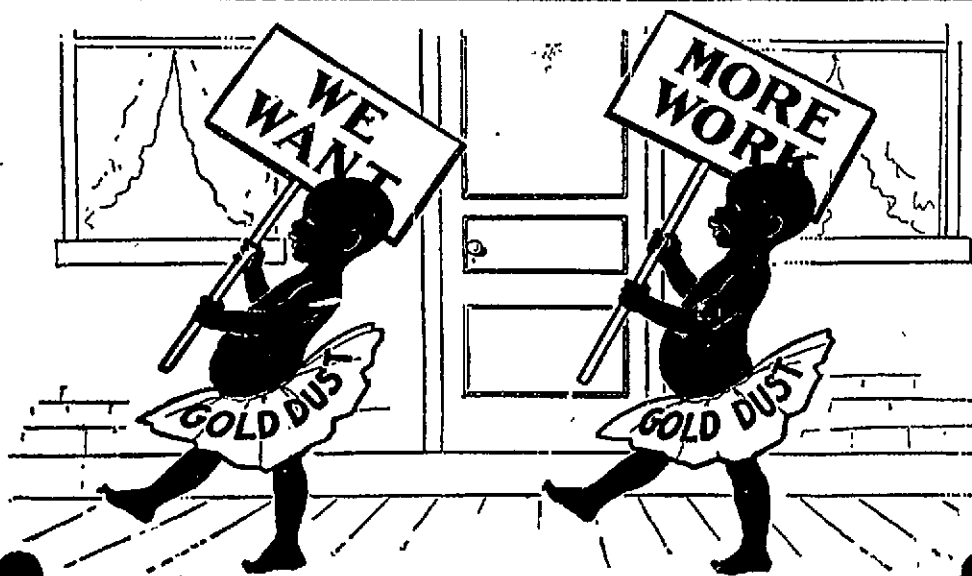

Local Brevelles.
A little Polish lad aged four years and who came from Merwood, attracted out to see something of the world on Sunday morning and naturally enough landed in this place. The lad was taking a rest on the porch belonging to one of the residences on West Main street when Chief of Police Keller, who had been looking for him in a cage. The lad was completely lost and said he didn't want to go so far from home. Then for the second time that morning the Chief of Police delivered a warning to his home, and this time to parents who were frantic over the disappearance of their son.

The Gold Dust Twins are not happy unless busy. They want more work—your work. Why not give them a trial? Gold Dust is a necessity in every well-regulated home—it's a time-saver and labor-saver.

The economy of Gold Dust is its efficiency. A little of the powder does so much—goes so far. Other powders and cleansers may look the same, may be advertised to do the same, but there's a big difference in actual results. Gold Dust stands alone among washing powders, and nothing can successfully take its place.

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form. The Gold Dust Twins need no outside help.

Ellery's Great Band At The Soisson Theatre Tomorrow Musical Treat.

The Norfolk Ledger says of Ellery's band which appears at the Soisson theatre tomorrow evening:

"The magnificent performance given by Channing Ellery's superb band for their premier concert at the Academy last night was a memorable one. It aroused the audience to a pitch of enthusiasm seldom, if ever, seen in a Norfolk theatre, and recalled in some measure the scenes enacted in the great music centers of the world, where the entire populace are lovers of music and are given acclamations to their well-beloved orchestras. It is a genuine cause for regret, not to say humiliation, that Norfolk can have such a band, the artistic excellence of which is beyond question, visit the city and be greeted with an audience so small. In number. Nor can it be pleaded that the fine quality of this band was unknown in Norfolk, for during their two weeks' visit to the Jamestown Exposition, the band made a host of friends and the enthusiasm displayed at their farewell concerts was such as to confidently inspire the hope that on a re-light and shade of his readings is such as to fill the hearer with positive delight. "A very high artistic standard has been set for this band by its proprietor and the playing of the many fine artists in its midst is beyond criticism. Every number on the program was enjoyed and double enjoyed and the audience was enraptured. The vocalists of the concert were Sig. Ferruccio Glinzini, a tenor. He has a voice of superb strength and the audience evinced the keenest delight in his singing. An encore was instantly demanded, and graciously given and he was obliged to respond to a second one. Mr. Ellery comes before the footlights to give in brief description of the concert, which selections were to be performed by his band for the benefit of those to whom some of the newer works might be unfamiliar and he also made a friendly little speech. "If the impression the band made on the opening night counts for anything it should perform to a capacity house both matinee and night. It is giving an undoubted musical treat, which, for those who miss it, will prove a very real loss. It is to be hoped this splendid band of musicians will be given the satisfaction of performing before an audience worthy alike of them and the city."

KILLED HIMSELF.

Took No Interest in Life—Just Tired of Living.

Not long ago, a man in Pittsburgh killed himself, because, according to a note he left he "took no interest in life and was just tired of living." It was afterwards discovered that this man, while he had held a good position all his life, was not worth a dollar. It is easy to see why he took no interest in life. He had nothing at stake. The man who is saving money doesn't become tired of living. He looks forward to the time when he will be independent. No danger of suicide. He has something to live for—hope for that's one good reason why every man should have a savings account, and a mighty good place to have it is The First National Bank of Connellsville, where money is absolutely safe and a 4 per cent interest is paid. It opens an account.

A Mansion in Heaven.
If a man is to have a mansion in Heaven, he had better get hold of some kind of a one on earth, so that he will know how to behave under the thrilling experience of citizenship. Now, it's up to you; we will do all we can to help you get your mansion here on earth if you will let us. More particulars if you call upon The Connellsville Construction Company.

TREE PLANTING ON FRICK LAND.

Several Thousand New Trees Will Be Set Out This Spring.

THOUSANDS ARE NOW GROWING

Reforestation of Mined Out Lands Begun Under Direction of Superintendent James Lynch Will Be Increased.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company which has been practicing the reforestation plan of some of their worked out coal lands, conserving them with young woodlots, and growing their own pit posts and trees which will come into use within a few years, will further extend these operations during the present year.

James Lynch, superintendent at the Valley works of this company, near Scottsdale, started this work about three years ago on what is known as the Lawyer tract, made up of several farms on the Connellsville road between Pennsville and Scottsdale. There are about 200 acres of land there planted to forest trees, nearly 100,000 of them now growing nicely, and comprising oak, chestnut, catalpa and English larch.

These have been growing for three years and each spring additions are made to the forests there. This year the plan will likely be extended to other lands of the Frick concern. Between 60,000 and 60,000 little trees will be planted in the Lawyer tract this spring, the tract being one from which coal is being mined for use at the Valley works, and which is well adapted to the forestry idea.

All farmers of the company are encouraged to grow trees, and many of them will attend the demonstrations to be given in Westmoreland and Fayette counties next week, by experts from the State Department of Agriculture. These men will be at Greensburg and Scottsdale the middle of the week.

When the Frick company started their tree planting they had an expert from the Forestry Service come to inspect their lands, and suggest the best trees to grow there and which would prove most valuable for the uses of the big coal and coke company. The expert spent several days in the neighborhood and went thoroughly over the proposition, which was handled by Mr. Lynch in a very excellent manner.

The United States Department of Agriculture through the Forest Service gives practical assistance to landowners in establishing commercial forest plantations, shelterbelts, windbreaks and snowbreaks, and in reclaiming shifting lands and other waste lands by forest planting. It has been the Department's design to establish forest plantations of the highest possible usefulness and value to the owners, and to afford object lessons in correct methods of forest planting, and to encourage artificial extension of forest growth in regions where the public welfare demands a greater forest area.
